

THE WORLD.

Published by the Press Publishing Company.

SATURDAY EVENING, JULY 21.

SUBSCRIPTION TO THE EVENING EDITION (Including Postage).
PER MONTH, 30c.; PER YEAR, $3.50.

VOL. 29..... NO. 9,832

Entered at the Post-Office at New York as second-class mail matter.

OPEN TO ALL

THE NEW YORK

GUARANTEES

First—THAT ITS REGULAR AVERAGE DAILY CIRCULATION DURING THE FIRST SIX MONTHS OF THIS YEAR WAS 288,267 AND THAT THIS IS AT LEAST ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND COPIES PER DAY MORE THAN THAT OF ANY OTHER NEWSPAPER IN AMERICA.

Second—THAT THE REGULAR AVERAGE DAILY CIRCULATION OF THE SUN-DAY WORLD IS MORE THAN TWICE AS THAT OF THE SUNDAY NEWS-PAPER IN NEW YORK WHICH IN POINT OF ADVERTISING IS NEXT TO THE WORLD.

Third—TO REFUND ALL MONEY PAID FOR ADVERTISING, IF UPON A PROPER TEST THE ABOVE STATEMENT IS NOT VERIFIED.

Circulation Books Always Open.

THE PEOPLE WILL SPEAK.

Public opinion in regard to the opening of Stuyvesant Park in the evening will make itself heard at a meeting on Wednesday evening next.

The publication in THE EVENING WORLD yesterday of the original deed and the conditions under which it was received has shown the people what their rights are, and they propose to ask for them.

Stuyvesant Hall will ring on Wednesday night with the demand of the people that the full benefits of the Park be accorded to those to whom this breathing place was given.

A HOME RULE PRINCIPLE.

The reorganization of the Aqueduct Commission by the Legislature in response to the recommendation of Gov. Hill, is a distinct triumph for the principle of local self-government.

The new Board will consist of the Mayor, Comptroller and the Commissioner of Public Works (Messrs. Hewitt, Myers and Newton) and "four competent persons" (two from each party) to be appointed by the Mayor. This ought to make an efficient and honest Board. If it does not prove so, the responsibility will be where it belongs—with the local authorities, and not upon an irresponsible, ignorant and partisan body at Albany. There can be no square game with a corrupt deal. The "deal" of 1886 has resulted as might have been expected. Politics should be kept out of contracts and contracts out of politics.

MORE THAN MEDICINE.

Something more than medicine is needed to remedy the state of things discovered by THE EVENING WORLD'S Physician to the Poor.

The doctor and the reporter visited twenty-five tenement-houses yesterday, and found in them 225 families—nearly ten families to a building—and the houses were not large.

No medicine and no advice can prevent disease and death in such quarters. Medical skill can alleviate suffering and save some lives, but that is all. What is required is that the overcrowding of tenements should be stopped, and that a decent degree of cleanliness should be maintained.

The Health Department has started to prevent the overcrowding. It is introducing sanitary measures in many tenements. But the landlords must be compelled to co-operate, or the slaughter of the innocents will continue.

Poetic justice got in its work for once on a careless contractor. In the heedless pulling down of a brick building in Chicago the contractor was killed. He was a good man, but not sufficiently careful of human life. Usually it is the innocent workmen who suffer.

The name of the winner in THE EVENING WORLD'S popular World-Building contest will be announced in Monday evening's issue. The winning list will be printed at the same time for the satisfaction of all contestants.

Gen. Sheridan has gained ground in his gallant fight with grim Death. He was able to sit up on the edge of his bed yesterday and swing his feet. May he soon be able to swing his hat!

It is reported that a gold mine has been recently discovered in Michigan. But Michigan has recently become a doubtful State.

When kings kiss, the people may well fear. The osculation of the Czar and the Emperor promises no good to liberty and progress in Europe.

The Giants should put their little volunteer mascot on the salary list. They may need him on the home field.

Senator Edwards made a big failure in his attempt to convince the Senate that a man who was a Democrat during the war is not fit to hold office. MELVILLE W. FULMER was confirmed as Chief Justice by a vote of nearly 2 to 1. It is a good thing that Vermont narrow-gauge partisanship doesn't run this great country.

GOOD THINGS FOR SUNDAY.

Lettuce, 5 cents.
 Kingfish, 10 cents.
 Whitefish, 10 cents.
 Beets, 1 cent a bunch.
 Grapes, 25 cents a pound.
 Raspberries, 7 cents a box.
 Frog legs, 50 cents a pound.
 Crab meat, 40 cents a pound.
 Nectarines, 40 cents a dozen.
 Green corn, 50 cents a dozen.
 Beans, melons, 10 to 25 cents.
 Gooseberries, 20 cents a quart.
 Cherries, sour, 15 cents a pound.
 Pineapples, 15 cents; best, 20 cents.
 Cauliflower, 15 cents; best, 20 cents.
 Plums, 20 cents a dozen; best, 40 cents.
 Peas—B. st., $1 a dozen; fair, 50 cents.
 Tomatoes, 10 cents a quart; best, 40 cents.
 Blueberries—Best, 15 cents; good, 10 cents.

WORLDINGS.

Four or five of the head porters in the leading Chicago hotels are collectively worth over half a million dollars.

The youthful Emperor of China rises at 8 o'clock in the morning, breakfasts at 9, dines at noon, sups at 3 o'clock and goes to bed by 8.

A revival held in Harrison County, Ind., by some apostles of the Mormon religion during the past few weeks has stirred up the inhabitants to a degree never known before. Many converts have been made, and the doctrines of the church have been discussed in every farmhouse.

John Brown, the eldest son of the famous John Brown of early abolition days, lives on Put-In-Bow Island, in Lake Erie, and supports himself by the income from his vineyard and orchards. He is now a gray-headed man, older by several years than his father was when he gave his life for freedom in Virginia.

Congressman Brice, the new Chairman of the Democratic National Executive Committee, is forty-two years old. He is a man of slight physique, greatly resembling Chief-Justice Fuller in appearance. His complexion is blond and his face is clean-shaven, except on the upper lip. Although a man of quiet manner, he has an opinion of his own, and doesn't hesitate to express it when necessary.

Hotel Register Discoveries.
 C. W. Parlo, of Atlanta, Ga., is stopping at the Sturtevant House.
 Baron of Courtier, of Buda Pesth, is a guest at the Windsor Hotel.Dr. and Mrs. E. S. F. Arnold, of Newport, R. I., is staying at the Grand Hotel.
 J. E. McIntire, the well-known bridge builder of Buffalo, is stopping at the Astor House.

Breuns J. Clay, of Richmond, Ky., and Louis Bartoldi, of Paris, have the freedom of the Hotel Bartoldi.

G. H. Barclay, of the British Legation at Washington, and C. A. Hammond, of Chicago, are stopping at the Hotel Barclay.

Arrivals at the Albemarle include H. W. Pendleton, M. A. Wells, of Indiana; Richard Ashworth, of Indiana; and Sam P. Lockhart, of Dallas, Tex.

The Glens Hotel register to-day mentions Capt. E. K. Webster, U. S. A., Rev. James T. Johnson, and Dr. James H. Brownell, of Washington, and A. Pope, of Pittsburg.

At the Fifth Avenue Hotel to-day are Major Philip Curran, of the British Army; W. E. Taylor, the big iron merchant of Richmond, Va., and N. Shivers, of Omaha, Neb.

New names at the Hoffman House are those of Judge John A. Hoban, of Indianapolis; C. S. Benjamin, of El Paso, and Augusto da Costa, of the Brazilian Legation at Washington.

Late arrivals at the St. James Hotel include Miss Jennie Simpson, sister of J. B. Simpson, who has been studying music abroad; G. W. Sackett, of Chicago, and W. A. Holden, of Rochester.

Look Out For Him.
 Information is brought to THE EVENING WORLD that a person who gives the name of M. F. Robinson, claims to be a reporter of this paper, and has been taking advantage of the agitation in these columns against policy dealers and other gamblers in attempting to blackmail the gamblers under threat of exposure. There is no such person connected with THE EVENING WORLD. We warn gamblers as well as our readers not to credit such pretensions on his part. THE EVENING WORLD'S fight, even against the gamblers, is always "on the square." The whole batch of them has not money enough to prevent a single exposure in these columns.A Very Religious Bull.
 To the Editor of THE EVENING WORLD:
 Lately there has been a great deal of talk about the Rev. Mr. Harrison, and how he thinks of bringing one very religious man down there any way. He ought to come up and bring the half of Wall street with him. He is a Sunday-school Superintendent, a class leader and a great chorister. He lives close on the margin, and if you should drop into his church during a prayer meeting he will take you by both hands and make such a time over you that you will think you have met an excited friend. Meet him the next day in Wall street and he will forget that he ever met you—unless, perhaps, you are worth about $1,000,000. But he is a very religious bull.Employed the Wrong Man.
 To the Editor of THE EVENING WORLD:
 Lately there has been a great deal of talk about the Rev. Mr. Harrison, and how he thinks of bringing one very religious man down there any way. He ought to come up and bring the half of Wall street with him. He is a Sunday-school Superintendent, a class leader and a great chorister. He lives close on the margin, and if you should drop into his church during a prayer meeting he will take you by both hands and make such a time over you that you will think you have met an excited friend. Meet him the next day in Wall street and he will forget that he ever met you—unless, perhaps, you are worth about $1,000,000. But he is a very religious bull.Employed the Wrong Man.
 To the Editor of THE EVENING WORLD:
 Lately there has been a great deal of talk about the Rev. Mr. Harrison, and how he thinks of bringing one very religious man down there any way. He ought to come up and bring the half of Wall street with him. He is a Sunday-school Superintendent, a class leader and a great chorister. He lives close on the margin, and if you should drop into his church during a prayer meeting he will take you by both hands and make such a time over you that you will think you have met an excited friend. Meet him the next day in Wall street and he will forget that he ever met you—unless, perhaps, you are worth about $1,000,000. But he is a very religious bull.Employed the Wrong Man.
 To the Editor of THE EVENING WORLD:
 Lately there has been a great deal of talk about the Rev. Mr. Harrison, and how he thinks of bringing one very religious man down there any way. He ought to come up and bring the half of Wall street with him. He is a Sunday-school Superintendent, a class leader and a great chorister. He lives close on the margin, and if you should drop into his church during a prayer meeting he will take you by both hands and make such a time over you that you will think you have met an excited friend. Meet him the next day in Wall street and he will forget that he ever met you—unless, perhaps, you are worth about $1,000,000. But he is a very religious bull.Employed the Wrong Man.
 To the Editor of THE EVENING WORLD:
 Lately there has been a great deal of talk about the Rev. Mr. Harrison, and how he thinks of bringing one very religious man down there any way. He ought to come up and bring the half of Wall street with him. He is a Sunday-school Superintendent, a class leader and a great chorister. He lives close on the margin, and if you should drop into his church during a prayer meeting he will take you by both hands and make such a time over you that you will think you have met an excited friend. Meet him the next day in Wall street and he will forget that he ever met you—unless, perhaps, you are worth about $1,000,000. But he is a very religious bull.Employed the Wrong Man.
 To the Editor of THE EVENING WORLD:
 Lately there has been a great deal of talk about the Rev. Mr. Harrison, and how he thinks of bringing one very religious man down there any way. He ought to come up and bring the half of Wall street with him. He is a Sunday-school Superintendent, a class leader and a great chorister. He lives close on the margin, and if you should drop into his church during a prayer meeting he will take you by both hands and make such a time over you that you will think you have met an excited friend. Meet him the next day in Wall street and he will forget that he ever met you—unless, perhaps, you are worth about $1,000,000. But he is a very religious bull.Employed the Wrong Man.
 To the Editor of THE EVENING WORLD:
 Lately there has been a great deal of talk about the Rev. Mr. Harrison, and how he thinks of bringing one very religious man down there any way. He ought to come up and bring the half of Wall street with him. He is a Sunday-school Superintendent, a class leader and a great chorister. He lives close on the margin, and if you should drop into his church during a prayer meeting he will take you by both hands and make such a time over you that you will think you have met an excited friend. Meet him the next day in Wall street and he will forget that he ever met you—unless, perhaps, you are worth about $1,000,000. But he is a very religious bull.Employed the Wrong Man.
 To the Editor of THE EVENING WORLD:
 Lately there has been a great deal of talk about the Rev. Mr. Harrison, and how he thinks of bringing one very religious man down there any way. He ought to come up and bring the half of Wall street with him. He is a Sunday-school Superintendent, a class leader and a great chorister. He lives close on the margin, and if you should drop into his church during a prayer meeting he will take you by both hands and make such a time over you that you will think you have met an excited friend. Meet him the next day in Wall street and he will forget that he ever met you—unless, perhaps, you are worth about $1,000,000. But he is a very religious bull.Employed the Wrong Man.
 To the Editor of THE EVENING WORLD:
 Lately there has been a great deal of talk about the Rev. Mr. Harrison, and how he thinks of bringing one very religious man down there any way. He ought to come up and bring the half of Wall street with him. He is a Sunday-school Superintendent, a class leader and a great chorister. He lives close on the margin, and if you should drop into his church during a prayer meeting he will take you by both hands and make such a time over you that you will think you have met an excited friend. Meet him the next day in Wall street and he will forget that he ever met you—unless, perhaps, you are worth about $1,000,000. But he is a very religious bull.Employed the Wrong Man.
 To the Editor of THE EVENING WORLD:
 Lately there has been a great deal of talk about the Rev. Mr. Harrison, and how he thinks of bringing one very religious man down there any way. He ought to come up and bring the half of Wall street with him. He is a Sunday-school Superintendent, a class leader and a great chorister. He lives close on the margin, and if you should drop into his church during a prayer meeting he will take you by both hands and make such a time over you that you will think you have met an excited friend. Meet him the next day in Wall street and he will forget that he ever met you—unless, perhaps, you are worth about $1,000,000. But he is a very religious bull.Employed the Wrong Man.
 To the Editor of THE EVENING WORLD:
 Lately there has been a great deal of talk about the Rev. Mr. Harrison, and how he thinks of bringing one very religious man down there any way. He ought to come up and bring the half of Wall street with him. He is a Sunday-school Superintendent, a class leader and a great chorister. He lives close on the margin, and if you should drop into his church during a prayer meeting he will take you by both hands and make such a time over you that you will think you have met an excited friend. Meet him the next day in Wall street and he will forget that he ever met you—unless, perhaps, you are worth about $1,000,000. But he is a very religious bull.Employed the Wrong Man.
 To the Editor of THE EVENING WORLD:
 Lately there has been a great deal of talk about the Rev. Mr. Harrison, and how he thinks of bringing one very religious man down there any way. He ought to come up and bring the half of Wall street with him. He is a Sunday-school Superintendent, a class leader and a great chorister. He lives close on the margin, and if you should drop into his church during a prayer meeting he will take you by both hands and make such a time over you that you will think you have met an excited friend. Meet him the next day in Wall street and he will forget that he ever met you—unless, perhaps, you are worth about $1,000,000. But he is a very religious bull.Employed the Wrong Man.
 To the Editor of THE EVENING WORLD:
 Lately there has been a great deal of talk about the Rev. Mr. Harrison, and how he thinks of bringing one very religious man down there any way. He ought to come up and bring the half of Wall street with him. He is a Sunday-school Superintendent, a class leader and a great chorister. He lives close on the margin, and if you should drop into his church during a prayer meeting he will take you by both hands and make such a time over you that you will think you have met an excited friend. Meet him the next day in Wall street and he will forget that he ever met you—unless, perhaps, you are worth about $1,000,000. But he is a very religious bull.Employed the Wrong Man.
 To the Editor of THE EVENING WORLD:
 Lately there has been a great deal of talk about the Rev. Mr. Harrison, and how he thinks of bringing one very religious man down there any way. He ought to come up and bring the half of Wall street with him. He is a Sunday-school Superintendent, a class leader and a great chorister. He lives close on the margin, and if you should drop into his church during a prayer meeting he will take you by both hands and make such a time over you that you will think you have met an excited friend. Meet him the next day in Wall street and he will forget that he ever met you—unless, perhaps, you are worth about $1,000,000. But he is a very religious bull.Employed the Wrong Man.
 To the Editor of THE EVENING WORLD:
 Lately there has been a great deal of talk about the Rev. Mr. Harrison, and how he thinks of bringing one very religious man down there any way. He ought to come up and bring the half of Wall street with him. He is a Sunday-school Superintendent, a class leader and a great chorister. He lives close on the margin, and if you should drop into his church during a prayer meeting he will take you by both hands and make such a time over you that you will think you have met an excited friend. Meet him the next day in Wall street and he will forget that he ever met you—unless, perhaps, you are worth about $1,000,000. But he is a very religious bull.Employed the Wrong Man.
 To the Editor of THE EVENING WORLD:
 Lately there has been a great deal of talk about the Rev. Mr. Harrison, and how he thinks of bringing one very religious man down there any way. He ought to come up and bring the half of Wall street with him. He is a Sunday-school Superintendent, a class leader and a great chorister. He lives close on the margin, and if you should drop into his church during a prayer meeting he will take you by both hands and make such a time over you that you will think you have met an excited friend. Meet him the next day in Wall street and he will forget that he ever met you—unless, perhaps, you are worth about $1,000,000. But he is a very religious bull.Employed the Wrong Man.
 To the Editor of THE EVENING WORLD:
 Lately there has been a great deal of talk about the Rev. Mr. Harrison, and how he thinks of bringing one very religious man down there any way. He ought to come up and bring the half of Wall street with him. He is a Sunday-school Superintendent, a class leader and a great chorister. He lives close on the margin, and if you should drop into his church during a prayer meeting he will take you by both hands and make such a time over you that you will think you have met an excited friend. Meet him the next day in Wall street and he will forget that he ever met you—unless, perhaps, you are worth about $1,000,000. But he is a very religious bull.Employed the Wrong Man.
 To the Editor of THE EVENING WORLD:
 Lately there has been a great deal of talk about the Rev. Mr. Harrison, and how he thinks of bringing one very religious man down there any way. He ought to come up and bring the half of Wall street with him. He is a Sunday-school Superintendent, a class leader and a great chorister. He lives close on the margin, and if you should drop into his church during a prayer meeting he will take you by both hands and make such a time over you that you will think you have met an excited friend. Meet him the next day in Wall street and he will forget that he ever met you—unless, perhaps, you are worth about $1,000,000. But he is a very religious bull.Employed the Wrong Man.
 To the Editor of THE EVENING WORLD:
 Lately there has been a great deal of talk about the Rev. Mr. Harrison, and how he thinks of bringing one very religious man down there any way. He ought to come up and bring the half of Wall street with him. He is a Sunday-school Superintendent, a class leader and a great chorister. He lives close on the margin, and if you should drop into his church during a prayer meeting he will take you by both hands and make such a time over you that you will think you have met an excited friend. Meet him the next day in Wall street and he will forget that he ever met you—unless, perhaps, you are worth about $1,000,000. But he is a very religious bull.Employed the Wrong Man.
 To the Editor of THE EVENING WORLD:
 Lately there has been a great deal of talk about the Rev. Mr. Harrison, and how he thinks of bringing one very religious man down there any way. He ought to come up and bring the half of Wall street with him. He is a Sunday-school Superintendent, a class leader and a great chorister. He lives close on the margin, and if you should drop into his church during a prayer meeting he will take you by both hands and make such a time over you that you will think you have met an excited friend. Meet him the next day in Wall street and he will forget that he ever met you—unless, perhaps, you are worth about $1,000,000. But he is a very religious bull.Employed the Wrong Man.
 To the Editor of THE EVENING WORLD:
 Lately there has been a great deal of talk about the Rev. Mr. Harrison, and how he thinks of bringing one very religious man down there any way. He ought to come up and bring the half of Wall street with him. He is a Sunday-school Superintendent, a class leader and a great chorister. He lives close on the margin, and if you should drop into his church during a prayer meeting he will take you by both hands and make such a time over you that you will think you have met an excited friend. Meet him the next day in Wall street and he will forget that he ever met you—unless, perhaps, you are worth about $1,000,000. But he is a very religious bull.

WHY NOT OPEN THE GATES?

THE STUYVESANT PARK EXCLUSIVES HAVE AN UNTENABLE CASE.

The People's Absolute Right to the Park as Claimed by a Resolution Adopted at a Meeting Held at Stuyvesant Hall Wednesday Evening—Popular Sentiment Aroused.

All who doubted heretofore that Peter G. Stuyvesant intended the land called Stuyvesant Park, which he deeded to the city, to be used exclusively for the benefit of the people, and that the Park Commissioners have the authority to leave the gates open in the evening, must have been relieved of this doubt in yesterday's issue of THE EVENING WORLD.

The land was given to the city for a public square exclusively, to be used as a public benefit. The park is by far the most pleasant in the cool of the evening, and this is the only time the poor people in the vicinity have to enjoy it. The people who would prefer to have the gates closed during the evening are just the ones who do not care much to visit it, and to such selfish people it is safe to say that the park was not intended for them any way.

Arrangements are being made for holding an indignation meeting in Stuyvesant Hall next Wednesday evening. The hall has been secured, and will undoubtedly ring with the sentiments of the people in favor of opening the gates.

Mr. M. J. Kelly, the lawyer, has willingly consented to be master of ceremonies. Mr. Kelly is strongly in favor of the question at hand. He has examined carefully the deed of the property, and he says that there is no good reason why the gates are closed in the evening.

Good speakers will be present at the meeting and will put forth convincing arguments in favor of THE EVENING WORLD'S measure, and all who attend will have an opportunity to express their views.

Judging from the opinions and righteous indignation of the people living in the vicinity of Stuyvesant Square, the attendance at the meeting will be so large that it will be difficult to find room for all.

The speakers and further arrangements will be decided upon. THE EVENING WORLD as they are decided upon.

Alderman Joseph Murray is in favor of the movement to open the gates, and does not see what is to be gained by their being closed. "They ought to be opened," said he. "What's the use of keeping them closed?"

FUN FOR AFTER DINNER.

An Object of Pity.

(From Judge.)

My friends say that I have consumption, and advise me to partake of fresh blood. Where, oh, where, is there some?

Doubtless.

(From Time.)

"What did Jonah do when he got out of the whale?"

"Told some fish story, I suppose."

To a Finish.

(From Time.)

First Argumentative Gaffer (to second ditto)—Come, now, I'll try to convince you.

Miss Nettie (under her breath)—Oh, how I hope you may both succeed!

On the Wedding Tour.

(From Time.)

Husband—I want rooms for myself and wife.

Hotel Clerk—Suit?

Husband—Of course she is perfectly lovely.

The sweetest girl in America.

The Cause.

(From Time.)

Gassan—Hello, Camp, you look entirely fagged out. What's the matter?

Camp—Oh, nothing! A week's rest will set me up. Just back from my vacation.

A Nautical Point.

(From Harper's Bazar.)

Small Boy—Captain, do Mother Cary's chickens ever lay any eggs?

Capt. P.—Plenty of 'em, my boy. Just you come up on deck to-morrow morning before the steward and see how full the hatchway is.

His Position.

(From Time.)

Father—Well, Thomas, you have graduated from college and are now ready for your life work. What will be your field?

Son (thoughtfully)—Well, to tell the truth, sir, it's a little hard to decide between law and centre.

The Grand Passion.

(From Time.)

Mrs. Albertine—Did you ever suffer from so grand a passion?

Bacon—Once, only once.

Mrs. Albertine—Oh, tell me! How? Where?

Bacon—Bridgeport, N. Y., at home.

Mrs. Albertine—I do not understand.

Bacon—I do.

Too Liberal.

(From Harper's Bazar.)

Tourist—What are your terms, Mr. Brown?

Landlord Brown, tell me a week, sir.

Tourist—And what am I expected to do?

Landlord—No? What do you mean?

Tourist—Why, you surely don't intend paying me $30 a week just for staying here, do you? It's too high. Fifteen dollars a week would be enough.

A Sure Test.

(From Times-Sifting.)

"I'd like to get some genuine maple sugar," said a gentleman from the South who is visiting a friend in New York.

"You want the genuine article I suppose?" queried the New Yorker.

"That's what I want. How can I recognize it?"

"By not finding it on sale at any of the stores."

Appearances Are Deceitful.

(From Times-Sifting.)

"I'll bet you had soft-boiled eggs for breakfast this morning," remarked Gus to Glimbo.

Glimbo—That's true, but you are mistaken.

"Well, there is a egg on your mustache."

"I dare say. We had eggs for breakfast day before yesterday. You said I had eggs for breakfast this morning. Do you see how easy it is to be deceived by appearances?"

To Lay Corner-Stone.

The corner-stone of the new Church of St. Charles Borromeo, one hundred and forty-third street and Seventh avenue, will be laid to-morrow at 4 p. m. by the Rev. Charles M. O'Keefe, LL. D., formerly of St. Paul's, Hartford, a brother of the Rev. John C. O'Keefe, Bishop of Curium, will officiate.

Rev. J. Dougherty, successor of the late Father Duggan, will preach the sermon. The Protectors Band will be present, and the ceremonies will be very impressive.

Local News Condensed.

The sudden death of George Newsham, aged forty, 87 East One Hundred and Third street, and Henry Cooper, aged forty-five, of One Hundred and Sixty-seventh street and G-trav avenue, were reported at the Coroner's office this morning.

LABOR MEN ON THE COMMISSION.

Mr. Archibald Believes They Would Materially Advance the Aqueduct Work.

Organized labor in this city is considerably exercised over the proposition suggested by James P. Archibald that the Mayor appoint two representative labor men on the new Aqueduct Commission.

Mr. Archibald is one of the best known and most practical of the labor leaders of this city, and has the reputation of being thoroughly honest in his convictions.

He is Master Workman of National Trades Association No. 210, composed of paper-hanger and interior decorators.

An EVENING WORLD reporter sought Mr. Archibald for his views in the matter, and asked him his reason for desiring the appointment of two labor men on the commission.

In answer he said: "There is so much labor employed on the Aqueduct and so few are acquainted with the actual needs of the big job that I think the Mayor is in duty bound to put men on the commission who understand what is required for the best interests of the city. No one else will know the conditions of the work on the job could consider their grievances with any degree of confidence or security that they would not be disparaged."

The well-known labor leader said that he has suffered intolerable torture, owing to bad ventilation, in inefficient light and carelessness in removing debris after explosions at the tunneling work, for which no responsibility could be fixed. The many serious accidents that have occurred since the commencement of the work might be obviated by the appointment of at least two workmen on the commission.

"It may be urged against my proposition that the appointment of two labor men on the commission would be a mere formality, but I take the appointment of two laborers on the Public Building Commission of Minneapolis as proof of the fact that such men can be of great service."

Every effort should be made by the labor organizations of this city to secure a representation on the reform commission.

ANTI-UNION SCHOOL CONTRACTORS.

The Building Trades Section Indignant at Their Treatment of Its Men.

The Building Trades Section held an important and well-attended meeting at 145 Eighth street last evening. Credentials were presented and delegates admitted from the Electric House-Wiremen's Union, the Whitehouse Association of Marble-Workers, Hickory Labor Club of Plumbers, Bricklayers' Union No. 11, Steam-Pipe and Boiler-Fitters' Union, and Lodge No. 1.

The German Painters' Union also reported that the owner of the Madison Avenue Hotel, at Fifty-eighth street, does not employ union men, and that the school buildings were the standard rate of wages to those he employs.

Delegate McKim, of Lodge No. 14, United Order of American Carpenters and Joiners, was elected Master of the Section.

The German Painters' Union also reported that the owner of the Madison Avenue Hotel, at Fifty-eighth street, does not employ union men, and that the school buildings were the standard rate of wages